Central Research, Inc. Awarded Mail Support Services Contract to U.S. Department of Education

Alexandria, Virginia, August 29, 2014 – The U.S. Department of Education (DOE) has awarded Central Research, Inc. (CRI) a Prime contract to provide Mail Services with a focus on quality control and customer satisfaction, ensuring the Department meets its goals and objectives. The contract is set up for one base period (September 30, 2014 to September 29, 2015) and includes two option periods with a potential total value of $3,500,000.

CRI will support DOE by facilitating its mail receiving and distribution services. Specific services will include mail receiving, incoming mail volume counting, inspecting, screening, sorting, delivering, metering, dispatching, tracking, and reporting at four mail center facilities in the Washington, D.C. metro area and one in Chicago. CRI brings a highly qualified and experienced team to this work, including one on-site supervisor and four mail clerks.

CRI is well-positioned to provide DOE with the expertise and understanding of the operational demands of its mail rooms across the country.
